The Privacy Act of 1974 requires written consent from the constituent before information can be obtained from a government agency's records.

Note: Members of Congress are empowered to help constituents interact with agencies and offices of the federal government. Although Members and their staff cannot force an agency to expedite your case or act in your favor, they can frequently intervene to facilitate the processes involved, encourage an agency to give your case consideration, and sometimes advocate for a favorable outcome. The rules of the House do not allow Members or their staff to intervene in or influence the outcome of cases that are under the jurisdiction of any court or under the jurisdiction of local and state government.
